

Out-of-State Mormon Times

Mormon Times is published weekly and includes Church News with featured articles and news stories related to the LDS Church and its members. It is a publication that will keep current members informed and edified, as well as those interested in the LDS faith.

Mormon Times published by the Deseret News in Salt Lake City, Utah, is a publication specifically for and about members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. However, Mormon Times is not an official publication of the church and does not go through the church's usual review process for its official publications. The Deseret News is a great general-interest newspaper, and it will continue to be.

Of Mormon Times, Deseret News Editor Joseph A. Cannon says: "There are more than 13 million members of the LDS Church worldwide. They are also interested in receiving more information for and about their church, and we believe we are uniquely qualified to provide that news and information for them."

In certain respects, the Mormon Times publication harkens back to early history of the Deseret News. Virtually all of the early editors, typesetters and other employees were trained at an earlier LDS Church publication called the Times and Seasons.
